

GOLDIE B. FLOBERG CENTER

2021 Rx: Togetherness

John Pingo, PhD. BCBA-D, President/CEO

Loneliness has the same impact on mortality as smoking 15 cigarettes a day, making it even more dangerous than obesity, according to the results of a 2015 Brigham Young University study, “Loneliness and Social Isolation as Risk Factors for Mortality.” Before 2020, I believed I was more of a loner who didn’t need to be around other people. The pandemic, and the loss of time with the people I work with has brought home the realization that the reason I enjoy my work at Goldie B. Floberg Center is the people.

As hard as isolation has been for me and others, I can’t imagine how hard it has been for the people we serve. Even when in-person learning is available, many of the children we serve are medically vulnerable and have continued e-learning. Community employment, day services, and community activities for adults have been on hold as well in order to avoid spread within homes and to staff.

I recently heard researcher Nicholas Epley interviewed about a study he conducted in which commuters on trains and buses were instructed to talk to a stranger near them, to remain disconnected, or to commute as normal. In both contexts, participants reported a more positive experience when they connected than when they did not, regardless of whether they were introverts or extroverts. He stated that when he is interviewed about the experiment, callers often call in telling him he’s crazy, that “people die” talking to strangers. He found that our expectation is that strangers don’t want to be engaged. But the data show we are all happier with social interaction, even with strangers!

Our fringe relationships, like coworkers, the server at your Friday fish fry, that one guy you see at the gym every morning, are all a part of the equation of our emotional well-being. These relationships allow us the opportunity to learn new things, have simple interactions, offer gratitude throughout the day, and feel a sense of belonging in our community. This is a massive category of human interaction which we have been missing for months. Fortunately, this is a temporary situation.

We’ve learned countless lessons from 2020. Here, just from a program perspective, the value of compassionate and consistent direct support professionals to the emotional health of the individuals we serve is immeasurable. DSPs become the immediate relationships as well as those outlying relationships. Even a shift change of staff brings variety to the day of someone sheltering in place. Personally, the lesson I’ve learned is to cherish the value of togetherness.

From the President

Scott B. Krowczyk, MBA, AIF

As we reflect on a year of our lives where lockdowns, quarantines, and social distancing became commonplace, we have an opportunity to look forward to the promise of better times together with new normals, new routines and new responsibilities. I am excited to be moving into the role of President of the Board of Directors for Goldie B. Floberg Center.

As I reflect on what I have learned about our past, and on what I currently witness as a Board member, the common thread and the DNA of this organization, is the passion of the great people who have been focused on the well-being of those we serve. From Board members and donors to our heroic executive team and DSP staff, the ability of the collective team to come together and plan the right path for those we serve is inspiring.

As we embark on this next year, we will no doubt have to continue to adapt and address new challenges. The Board will continue our role in supporting the organization's long term goals. As we continue to focus on safely getting through the pandemic, we will continue to build on programming and opportunities as well as supporting advocacy at the state level for those we serve. We will also work hard to provide opportunities and growth for the hard working team that provide these services.

Finally, we will continue to engage our donors and fundraising opportunities focused on securing a great future. I am pleased to see the formation of a Community Advisory Committee aimed at connecting leaders of our past, community leaders, our Board and executives to focus on longterm success for Goldie B Floberg Center. Looking forward, we will also develop a pipeline of future Board members to ensure the momentum we have is maintained for years to come.

I am looking forward to spending more time together in the year ahead.

Pride of the Stateline Award

Goldie B. Floberg Center was recognized with the 2020 Pride of the Stateline award by the Stateline Chamber of Commerce. This award recognizes an individual, business or organization for their contributions to the Stateline community. Follow the link below to see our acceptance video from CEO Dr. John Pingo and persons served, Steven and Greg.

From the Outgoing President

Stephen E. Schmeling, President, Board of Directors

2020 is over and 2021 has already had a handful of challenges. This 103-year-old organization has excelled through many previous global challenges and grown from the experiences. The pandemic is no exception. Regardless of the circumstances, our responsibility to the people we serve has not waivered and has gotten stronger through these difficult times. True heroes have emerged. People willing to sacrifice personal safety and time with their families to quarantine with the people we serve. Thank you to all our DSPs and staff that have stepped up to provide that care and make those personal sacrifices. A big thanks to our executive staff also for providing the leadership needed to guide us through these difficult times.

There have been some disappointments as board president. One of those is not being able to meet face to face this year to share the excitement of our successes, as well as being unable to meet face to face with our donors to say thank you. We would have liked to meet our new friends at the fall event.

The great news is that the organization's successes far outweigh the disappointments. We have beaten the averages as far as COVID cases. The people we serve and our staff have received the first round of vaccinations. We have had new private business and trade associations step up to provide labor and monetary donations to help our team. We are also in the early stages of developing a Community Advisory Committee made up of previous board members and interested community members.

I am excited to turn over the presidency to Scott Krowczyk. I have worked with Scott on previous boards and know he will be a great leader.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve.

Giving Extra with Employer Matching

Insight from Donor Jim Laska

Living in the Meadows of Ridgefield for the past 30+ years and being in such close proximity to the Goldie B. Floberg Center, it only made sense to contribute to such a worthwhile organization over the years. Whether giving regularly through the year or for special occasions like Mother Christmas, it fills our heart to know we can help the children and adults that are associated with the Goldie Floberg Center in our community.

As a long time employee of Collins Aerospace (Sundstrand, for you long time area residents), I've been aware of the Matching Gifts Program, but never took the time to really understand it. For the last couple of months I've been telling my wife, Carla, that "I need to go into our company website and figure out how to get matching $$'s for our contributions to our local charities such as Goldie Floberg". Finally, after saying it for the umpteenth time, she gave me that look that wives give their husbands when they want you to do something right now!

To my surprise the site was very user friendly and already had the Goldie Floberg Center listed as an approved organization. I had asked for a pdf file of my giving year to date and was able to go in and not only request matching on all the donations I made year to date, but set up a reoccurring monthly donation. I implore all donors to check with their company HR/Benefits department to see if they match charitable giving and to fellow Collins employees, go in and sign up to have your donations match. Whether you give to Goldie Floberg or other charitable organizations in the area, they could all use the extra money.
